Petersbourg, Aug. 2. The Empreſs arrived here the 29th of the laſt Month, and the firſt Court Day will be To-morrow.

Vienna, Auguſt 24, N. S. General Nadaſti having, ſince the Surrender of Placentia, overtaken the Rear of the Enemy near Voghera, has killed near 200 of them, and made ſeveral Priſoners. The King of Sardinia's Corps will have joined M. Botta's as on the 18th Inſtant at Voghera, ſo that News is daily expected whether the Enemy will be likely to keep the important Poſt behind the Scrivia from Tortona to Saravalla.

General Neuhaus is now arrived here from the Army in Italy, and brings the following Relation of the compleat Victory gained by the Imperial Forces over the French and Spaniards at Rottofreddo on the Tidone, the 10th of Auguſt 1746, and the ſubſequent Reduction of the Town of Placentia.

AS ſoon as Advice was received that the Enemy, notwithſtanding our Diſpoſitions on the Tidone, had thrown three Bridges over the Po, and was paſſed with their whole Force, it was reſolved that the Army ſhould break up at Midnight on the 9th, and advance towards them, after having reinforced General Nadaſti's ſmall Corps with two Battalions and 100 German Horſe, who was to be left behind to obſerve the Town and Garriſon of Placentia. During our March we heared a great firing not far from the Town, and ſoon afterwards learnt that the Enemy had not only burnt their Bridge at Placentia, but had alſo blown up the Tête du Pont. The Evening before, General Count Serbelloni, and General Count Neuhaus, were detached to Rottofredda with the Avant Guard, conſiſting of ſix Battalions, as many Companies of Grenadiers, and 1000 Horſe, under General Baron Stampach, where General Serbelloni took Poſt immediately, and at Break of Day was in Poſſeſſion of the Bridge over the Nuretta, with Palfy's and Roth's Companies of Grenadiers, whereupon the Enemy endeavour'd to make themſelves Maſters of the ſaid Bridge, by a Detachment of Infantry and Cavalry, but were obliged to retire without effectuating their Deſign, by the valiant Behaviour of Roth's Grenadiers, in which Attack the firſt Lieutenant and ſome Men were wounded.

In the mean while General Count Gorani joined the aboveſaid ſix Battalions with ten Companies of Grenadiers, and the Army advanced alſo, when it was reſolved not only to follow follow the Enemy on the other Side of the Nuretta, but alſo to attack them immediately. In Conſequence of which General Serbelloni, who was afterwards wounded, and the Generals Neuhaus and Gorani, led up the 16 Companies of Grenadiers on the Right Hand Side of the Highway, and the ſix Battalions on the Left, and attacked the Enemy. The Fire was very great and obſtinate on both Sides, and the Enemy's Cavalry forced our Infantry, notwithſtanding the great Bravery which they ſhewed upon this Occaſion; but General Stampach, with the Command under Lieutenant Colonel Baron Holly, ſuccoured them ſo effectually, that the Enemy was at laſt obliged to give way, and abandon to our Troops one Standard and ſome Colours.

Among the aboveſaid 1000 Horſe were 300 Piemonteſe Dragoons, who behaved with uncommon Bravery, and took four Pair of Colours and one Standard from the Enemy.

In the mean while the Army formed itſelf, as well as the Ground would allow of, by Reaſon of the many Ditches and Thickets, and began the Attack with the greateſt Vigour. The Enemy fought very obſtinately, and as they had the Advantage of the Ditches and Thickets, we were obliged to diſpute the Ground Step by Step, till at laſt they were forced to retire over the Tidone, and we accompanied them with a continual Fire from our Artillery as ſoon as we could gain the riſing Ground, but as they occupied ſome Caſſines on the other Side, they fired continually from their Cannon upon us, till we had raiſed two Batteries upon the ſaid riſing Ground, one of five great Pieces of Cannon, and the other of four ſmaller, whereby the Enemy's Fire was greatly interrupted; at this Time General Bernclau, who was juſt going to lead on againſt the Enemy two Brigades of Infantry, four Squadrons of Cavalry, and John Palfy's Company of Carabineers, was ſo deſperately wounded by a Musket Ball, that he died ſoon after.

The Battalions that had been in the Fire all this Time had ſuffered greatly, and were very much fatigued, whereupon General Roth was ordered to advance with the Left Wing, which he commanded, to the Center, and to paſs the ſaid River Tidone, and to fall into the Enemy's Flank, if poſſible; and at the ſame Time General Gorani, who had been reinforced with ſome Battalions, and ſupported by the Cavalry, turned alſo towards the Center, ſo that the Enemy ſeeing themſelves attacked on both Sides, cauſed freſh Succours of Cavalry and Infantry to advance continually, and made an incredible Fire upon our Troops, who notwithſtanding advanced upon them, and obliged them to retire, during which they were conſtantly followed by the Artillery from the two Batteries under Lieutenant Colonel Schrems.

At the ſame Time General Andlau, who was ſeconded by Detachments from the three Regiments of Cavalry under the Command of General Count O Donel, advanced upon the Highway towards the Enemy, from whence jointly with General Palavicini, who was returned, after having had a Wound dreſſed, which he had received by a Musket Ball on the Head, he drove the Enemy away, and obliged them, after a very obſtinate Defence, not only to abandon the Caſſines and the Cannon therein, but alſo to quit the Field of Battle; whereby the Almighty declared the Victory, which had been diſputed during eleven Hours, on our Side. On which Occaſion it muſt be impartially owned, to all their well deſerved Honour, that the Generality and other Officers, as well as common Soldiers, and every one, according to their Functions, diſtinguiſhed themſelves exceedingly by their Bravery and Intrepidity; and alſo that the Artilleriſts, under the Command of Lieutenant Colonel Schrems, did not a little contribute to the happy Iſſue of the Affair, and therefore have acquired a very particular Praiſe. No General, except Bernclau, is killed, but Palavicini, Serbelloni, and Vogtern, are wounded, though not dangerouſly. Beſides which, there are of Officers 14 killed, and 75 wounded, and of private Men 345 killed, 1496 wounded, and 263 loſt, amongſt which are two Lieutenants. On the other Hand, the Loſs of the Enemy is not yet exactly known, but to judge by Advices received, and by the Reports of Priſoners and Deſerters, it may be computed at above 10000 Men, of which we have 1300 Priſoners, together with 146 Officers, whereof 22 are French, the reſt Spaniſh.

This happy Victory has, by God's Aſſiſtance, been followed by the farther Succeſs of the Surrender of Placentia, General Nadaſti having, during the Battle, and before he knew of the Succeſs of it, ſummoned the Place, and the Commandant having demanded to capitulate, the Town and Citadel were delivered up, with a Garriſon of 300 Men, and 6000 ſick and wounded Priſoners, and 84 Cannon, 30 Mortars, and a very great Quantity of Ammunition and Proviſions.

Namur, Aug. 28, N. S. On the 26th Inſtant there happen'd a ſmart Skirmiſh between Boneff and Ramillies, where a French Corps of about 6000 Men was poſted. They were vigorouſly attacked by Trips's Corps, Frangipani's Regiment, ſome of Ligne and Stirum's Dragoons, and the Regiment of Betlem. Theſe latter were at firſt repulſed, with the Loſs of ſome Men, and of five Pieces of Cannon; but the Attack being renewed, the Cannon were retaken, and a great Slaughter made of the Enemy. Five Hundred Horſes, and 250 Priſoners fell into our Hands, with 12 Officers, amongſt which is a Brigadier and a Lieutenant Colonel. The Prince of Monaco, who was wounded at the Battle of Dettingen, and ſeveral other Officers of Rank, and a great Number of private Men, are ſaid to have been killed upon the Spot; moſt of the Genſdarmes were kill'd or taken.

Namur, Aug. 29, N. S. The whole Baggage of the Allied Army paſſed through this Town and croſſed over the Meuſe Yeſterday, and this Day the whole Army followed. The Left Wing entred the Iron Gate, and went out at that of St. Nicolas, and paſſed the Meuſe upon Pontons at the Hermitage; another Part paſſed over the Bridges on the Sambre and the Meuſe, and have taken the Camp of O'hay, near Grand Pré, two Leagues and a half from this Place, on the Way to Luxembourg; the Rear Guard remained at Waſeiges and Neſtle, conſiſting of Trips's Corps, the greateſt Part of the Grenadiers of the Army, and ſome Cavalry, under the Command of Lieutenant General Smiſſaert and Major General Lindman, and is to follow the Army. The Regiments which went out of this Place are ſince returned into Garriſon.

Hague,

Hague, Sept. 2, N. S. The French have taken Poſſeſſion of the Meuſe, from Huy down to Viſet, and Marſhal Saxe has been making Diſpoſitions for paſſing the Mehaigne, by throwing ſeven Bridges over it. Prince Charles has paſſed the Meuſe at Namur, and poſted himſelf behind that Fortreſs.
